TAYLOR MEMORIAL HOSPITAL: PRESBYTERIAN MISSION, PAOTINFU, CHINA (CLASSIC REPRINT)

Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Taylor Memorial Hospital: Presbyterian Mission, Paotinfu, China Medical work was begun under the American Presbyterian Mission at Paotingfu about the first of January 1894, by Dr. George Yardly Taylor, in the rear of the street chapel on the north street. It was begun as a dispensary which was held every afternoon. A little later, some rooms were fitted up here for inpatients. In the Spring of 1895, when Dr. Taylor went to America on a furlough, Dr. B. C. Atterbury came and took up the medical work. Dr. Atterbury, at his own expense, built a dispensary with a large waiting room which was used also as the Compound Chapel. He also built ten hospital rooms for patients. This was all on the old compound, one mile north of the city. When Dr. Taylor returned from furlough, he had charge of the hospital work and held dispensary clinics on alternate days at the compound and in the city. His work grew rapidly and his clinics were largely attended, having as many as one hundred and fifty patients a day in his clinics, and the wards were well filled. He had no trained assistants and did most of the work with his own hands. During the Spring of 1900 a ward for women was added but was never used, as Dr. Taylor was killed and his hospital and dispensary torn down on June 30. 1900, by the Boxers. The medical work of the station was reopened in the rear of the city street chapel on the west street in the Autumn of 1902 by Dr. Charles Lewis. A few rooms were also arranged for wards and some...
