Not illustrated. 1912 Excerpt: .problems in construction, in the solution of which the boys would gain something of skill in tools and processes, some knowledge of the materials used, and some appreciation of the constructive life about them. This enlargement consisted in making an industrial or vocational approach to the manual arts--using them to illustrate as actually as possible the industries and vocations that are dependent upon these arts. While the limitations imposed by the regular school program prevented very much change in the actual work done by the boys, it was possible to give it a larger significance as a study of those vocations using similar materials and processes. For example, in the sixth grades the aim is to emphasize the four important facts the worker in wood has to know to be successful in his vocation: (1) his tools and how to use them; (2) what woods and materials are suitable to use and why; (3) how to form and put them together; (4) what is wanted and how to supply it. In the seventh grade this approach emphasizes the same idea, but from another standpoint. Here the different kinds of workers in wood are brought out. The differentiation due to the service each renders society by reason of the special skill and knowledge he possesses is emphasized. The following four points are kept before the class: (1) a need to be supplied; (2) what materials are required; (3) what form or construction is best and necessary; (4)...
