It does not use ionizing radiation. It is cost effective. It produces images in real time. It can yield blood flow information. Besides its use in the diagnostic aspect, ultrasonography has proved to be an important therapeutic aid as well. Ultrasonography has proved to be a valuable aid in the diagnostic imaging modalities in cases such as nasal fractures, soft tissue lesions, tongue cancer thickness etc. Therefore, its use in oral and maxillofacial imaging as a diagnostic tool is remarkable.
