AUTHORHOUSE, United States, 2008. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .This is a story of Cathy s life growing up as a child with her parent s and siblings in a safe environment. While she was still in high school, is where she met her sweetheart and future husband. They were both virgins and so much in love. They met on a bus while both were attending vocational school for two years. Not one single day did they ever have an argument, but little did she realize what her future was going to be like with him. Six years after being married, just after her child was born is when things progressively started to go wrong. Her husband dropped the bombshell on her one Sunday morning that he had decided to go back to being a Jehovah s Witness. He had been raised as such, but had been attending the Baptist faith with her since marriage. She attended with him for twenty-five years being an open-minded person and wanting to keep the family together. Cathy kept many secrets to herself to protect his image as an elder of the congregation. She felt like she couldn t tell anyone about the sexual abuse she endured since the age of ten and the emotional and physical abuse she endured throughout her thirty-two year marriage. Cathy is now willing and ready to tell her story to the world in hopes that those who read it will learn some valuable lessons from it. She also wants her readers to understand how religious organizations can subtly take over your whole thought process and being, without even realizing it. Cathy is very candid in what she tells, including her deepest darkest most intimate mistakes she has made her in...
