ON March 15th, 1886, Mr. Tomlinson, who is now master, with Bob the huntsman, and one or two more true bred ones, started off, notwithstanding the snow, which was nearly a foot deep. The meet was at Apedale which is about two miles north of Castle Bolton, but on coming across the drag of a fox in Bolton West Park the hounds were laid on and right carefully did they hunt it in the direction of Virgin lead mine, then doubling slightly back, and to the west, they carried it merrily on down and across Beldon Bottom, when the varmint stole away, but the hounds, not to be denied, pushed him through Horner s allotment, down to Woodhall Coombs, back again through Hawbank and Lingy pasture; over Virgin Top to Swaledale, where he turned to the west along the moor...
