A hilarious account of winning the nerd lottery—a funny, witty chronicle of a space enthusiasts ninety days with the NASA control center during the Phoenix Mars Mission. In the summer of 2008, Andrew Kessler, the luckiest fanboy in fandom, lived his space dream, spending three months in NASAs mission control with one hundred thirty of the worlds best planetary scientists and engineers as they explored the north pole of Mars. This story is a human drama about modern-day pioneers battling NASA politics, temperamental robots, and the bizarre world of daily life in mission control. The Phoenix Mars mission was the first man-made probe ever sent to the Martian arctic. The programs goal was to find out how climate change can turn a warm, wet planet (read: Earth) into a cold, barren desert (read: Mars). Along the way, Phoenix discovered a giant frozen ocean trapped beneath the north pole of Mars, exotic food for aliens and liquid water, and laid the foundation for NASAs current exploration of Mars using the Curiosity rover. This is not science fiction. It is fact. Not bad for a summer holiday. This item ships from multiple locations. Your book may arrive from Roseburg, OR, La Vergne, TN. Paperback.
