What sick leave does he get?--Any sick leave that may occur in reason. 18969. You get up to six months on full pay, do not you--Yes, and so also with the bank manager. Chairmun--continued. 18970. Does the bank manager get the same?--Yes--and better treatment than that, because if he happens to die while practically in harness his widow would get something. 18971. What would she get?--A small pension sufficient to keep her in comfort the rest of her days. 18972-3. Do you know the name of the bank?--Yes, the Stamford, Spalding and Boston Bank. 18974. And all these facts combined tend to make you think that the bank manager gets better pay than you do. WThat is your pay?-- 165 a year. 18975. All told?--All told. 18976. WTiere do you live?--In Thrapston, at a private house. 18977. At a private house, for which you have to pay rent?--For which I have to pav rent--and a very heavy rent, too, for the small place. 18978. At all events, you have to live in a private house, and he gets quarters supplied him?--He does. 18979. Suppose there were any defalcations in the bank, who would be responsible as far as you know?--Well, the bank manager, I understand, holds his clerks in bond to him. They are responsible to him, and he gives a bond himself; and I take it that if he is responsible, as manager, to the Directors of the Company, the clerks are responsible to...
