Amazon.com. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 184 pages. Dimensions: 11.0in. x 8.5in. x 0.4in. This non-fiction novel is about the real every day life of professional state licensed Private Investigators and Polygraph Examiners from the front lines of our profession. Despite the myth, our work is not done in the safe sanctuaries of Corporate America. On the contrary, we work alone without backup on the dark streets, prisons and homes under dangerous and hostile conditions. Our work ranges throughout multi-state regions to the politically vilified and ethnically sensitive Arab corridor of Dearborn, Michigan, to the notorious 8-mile of Detroit where soul less hominids roam the streets among wandering human pack dogs. During my tenure, I have administered examinations on attorneys, prosecuting attorneys, judges, doctors, airline pilots, air traffic controllers, mob figures, dope dealers, union officials, police officers, Roman Catholic priests, high ranking politicians and the public at large. I have covered the complete strata of society from politically powerful multimillionaires, to people living in the back of a pickup truck whose lives haven't matter since the day they were born. This book is a faction, a non-fiction novel with real life cases that were experienced firsthand. The names and places have been changed to protect the innocent as well as the guilty. The false allegations have ranged from murder, rape, pedophilia, robbery armed, embezzlement, espionage, and terrorism, down to the explosive cases of marriage infidelity. Be advised that there are statements made in this book that will come to pass, which is contrary to the views of mainstream media or the government version of critical events. This is in part due to my extensive training and experience as a military and civilian trained High Explosive Bomb Technician, S. W. A. T. Officer, Licensed Pilot, and former United States Marine Corps Captain...
