Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Berlin, East and West, crucible of contrasting cultural, economic and political ideologies. This was the setting for an exercise in reconciliation. It was in response to an invitation by the German Lutheran churches in Berlin to the staff of the New Coventry Cathedral early in the 60 s. All were concerned to engage in practical ways to redress the atrocities of war, and the affects on the human psyche. Newly introduced to the mission at the Cathedral, Trevor Cooper included such concerns in his brief, as an industrial chaplain there for twenty-five years. Throughout the 70 s and 80 s he persuaded industrial employers, the trades unions, educational bodies, local authorities and governmental bodies to get involved in the planning and execution of educational exchange programmes in Coventry and the West Midlands. He encouraged them to enable their own staff, employees and young workers, to participate in the reciprocal visits organized by his German counterparts in Berlin. This book represents a realistic moral and ethical appraisal of the social influences on the lives of human beings, albeit living in an extraordinary environment. But,...
