

Third Saturday in October: The Game-By-Game Story of the South's Most Intense Football Rivalry (Hardback)

By Al Browning

Cumberland House Publishing, United States, 2001. Hardback. Condition: New. 2nd ed.. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . On November 18, 1901, the University of Alabama and the University of Tennessee first locked horns on a football field. At the contest's end, the score was tied, nothing had been resolved, and about two thousand fans were on the field at Tuscaloosa, fighting. Since that day the Tennessee-Alabama game has developed into one of the premier football rivalries in the nation. To many of the faithful, it is much more than a game -- it is a crusade. The intensity with which these games have been waged makes victory as satisfying as the warm crimson and orange leaves that dance in Knoxville's cool Smoky Mountain breezes. Defeat, however, is more bitter than the choking smoke of Birmingham's steel mills. Beginning in 1928, the annual game has been played on the third Saturday in October, and the contest has produced enough heroes to fill several books. Third Saturday in October tells the story of each game. From Wallace Wade, Frank Thomas, Red Drew, Paul Bear Bryant, Ray Perkins, Bill Curry, Gene Stallings, and Mike Dubose...
