Excerpt from A Historic Discourse: Delivered at the Centennial Celebration of the First Congregational Church in New Ipswich, October 22, 1860 The time during which persons were under conviction in this revival is thought to have been about three weeks. The subjects of the work were of all ages, from children of four, seven and twelve years, up to extreme old age. And, if we may judge from such of them as have been living within the last twenty years, the conversions must have been genuine, and the consecration to Christ full and practical. So far as known, a solitary individual alone remains, a monument of the grace of this memorable period. As the fruits of this revival, there were added to the church during the year 1786, eighty-eight members, and in the year following, ten, by which the church was more than doubled, there being but ninety-one members before. This work of grace was followed by revivals in neighboring places, especially in Mason,1 and Ashby. On election day, in 1786, the young people of New Ipswich went to Ashby to hold a religious meeting with the young people of that place. The minister of Ashby was present, as also Mr. Farrar, but the exercises were conducted chie?y by the young converts from New Ipswich. They told what God had done for their souls, and exhorted their young friends to repent. There was no other revival during the ministry of Mr. Farrar, though it continued more than twenty years.
