Excerpt from Alumni Monthly, Vol. 31: December, 1930 The best proof the university can give of its appreciation of what he did for it is to go straight ahead with the business of selecting students with the care that has lately been put into the task. As the Alumni Monthly said when Dr. Barbour s election as President was announced and the new administration was about to square away on its history-making voyage, the one great desideratum at Brown was (and it still is) the laying of stress on quality. Kenneth Mason did his full share in this direction. Let his successor, whoever he may turn out to be, follow faithfully in his footsteps.
