Nearly half a century in meters. the level of medical technology has been a remarkable increase. generally speaking. the development of medical technology is mainly manifested in two aspects: First. with the gradual deepening of epidemiological work of basic and clinical research. we With a more profound understanding of the essence of a variety of diseases. their prevention. diagnosis. and treatment philosophy is constantly updated; Second. a large number of new treatment technology. equipment and drugs have been brought forth. to provide more choice for the prevention and treatment of disease means. Progress in these two areas. laid the foundation for us to better disease prevention and medical treatment. In this situation. how to better implement the new concept of preventing and curing diseases. how scientific and standardized. reasonable application of these new technologies is a topic that we must seriously face. There is no doubt that the development of science is necessary for human progress. raising the level of medical technology is an important guarantee for us to overcome the disease. However. if these new technologies. new equipment. new drugs are not standardized application may be counterproductive. and even give adverse effects in patients. We need to hold high public interest. norms. prevention and innovation of the four flags. to ensure the healthy and...
