I continued on at a good smart pace, and, after I had walked 12 miles, I passed a tavern where I noticed their buggy, but I went on my way without stopping. They however, saw me, and called for me to stop and take something to drink. I replied that I did not drink anything, but I went into the tavern with them. Here said one of them, handing me a dollar, here is a present for you, as you are such a smart walker, I shall be glad to see you when you arrive in town. He gave me his address, and the two gentlemen rode on. While walking alone upon the road, my thoughts would be continually employed, sometimes planning schemes for future operation, sometimes in reflection on past events, on parents, home and friends, and sometimes I would indulge in feelings of a different nature. The following lines describe my feelings while on one of these pedestrian excursions. i THE WANDERING BOY. The winter was cold, and I had no place, My heart it was sad, as it beat in my breast, I looked all around, and said with a sigh, --I'm a stranger, alone, a poor Wandering Boy. I once had a home;--of that I am sure, And a mother that answered each infant desire, Our cottage it stood near the wood-bowry vale, Where the robin would warble his sorrowful talje. My father and...
