Reviews

This pdf is indeed gripping and interesting. It is definitely simplistic but shocks within the 50 percent of your book. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.

Excerpt from Three Letters From Sir Charles Trevelyan to the Times On London Pauperism: With the Leading Article Upon Them and Extracts From How to Relieve the Poor of Edinburgh and Other Great Cities, Without Increasing Pauperism, a Tried, Successful, and Economical Plan, 1867 Sir, - The pauperised, demoralised state of London is the scandal of our age. London is the metropolis, not only of the United Kingdom, but also Of an empire upon which the sun never sets, including the vassal continent of India, itself an empire. London is the foremost city of Christendom; and at this season the delegates assemble here of societies which have for their Object the evangelisation of the world. The population of London is as large as the aggregate population of the three next largest European cities - Paris, Vienna, and Berlin - and it closely approximates to that Of Scotland, is nearly equal to the population of Holland, and is not quite three times that of Wales. The wealth of London is even more remarkable than its population; and British dependencies and foreign nations look to it as an inexhaustible treasury from which loans Of vast aggregate amount may be obtained for carrying on every sort of public and private undertaking. Yet this London is a whited sepulchre, which, indeed, appears beautiful outward, but within is full of dead men's bones, and of all uncleanness. It is a gigantic laboratory Of corruption and crime; and, while it aspires to christianise the heathen, it exercises a far more direct and effective influence in heathenising Christians, and in dragging the rest Of England down to its own low level. This monstrous evil is the...
