Last year we endeavored to present a broad picture of what was being done by the Federal Government in the field of planning, housing, land-uses, including rural land problems; parks and forests, together with a resume of state planning activities. The Joint Planning Conference in 1935 devoted its sessions to the subject: Must American Cities Decay? and the proceedings of the conference, therefore, formed the section presented in former years, entitled In the Cities and Towns. At the Cincinnati planning conference in 1935, a merger of the National Conference on City Planning and the American Civic Association was voted. On July 1, 1935, an organization meeting of the new Board of Directors was held in Washington and the charter of the American Civic Association, an incorporated body, was amended to meet the desires of the joint organizers. The name of the new organization became the American Planning and Civic Association. At its annual meeting, held at Skyland, Virginia, June, 1935, the National Conference on State Parks voted to place its business management in the hands of the staff of the American Planning and Civic Association, to continue to use Planning and Civic Comment as its official organ, to use the American Planning and Civic Annual each year for an enlarged section on State Parks, and to cooperate with the American Planning and Civic Association in...
